The Old Days

IN MARCH of 1892, Porterville caused something of a stir around the southern area of the state when an entry of seedling oranges in the Southern Citrus Fair in Los Angeles took first place; the above award went to Porterville as a result. The following statement appeared in the March 11, 1892 issue of the Porterville Enterprise: "At the Citrus Fair at Los Angeles, seedling oranges from Porterville took first prize. This is encouraging. Citrus fruit culture is in its infancy here but the experiments have proved satisfactory. In fact, we justly claim that Porterville and the immediate vicinity is the finest horticultural region generally, and more especially so for citrus and all semi-tropical fruits. Other places have had their booms, some of them very short lived, but Porterville will have its boom and a boom to stay, for our resources are so great and varied." (Ed. Note: The hand-inscribed award, with what was originally a golden frame, was found several years ago in the basement of the home of the late Anna L. Norris. It has been somewhat soiled by water, but this 69-year-old memento of an early-day Porterville triumph should find its place in the new Porterville Museum.)

Washington, April 23 —Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace has Washington shook up more than any Southern invasion since Morgan's raiders.

Yes, the official statements on the Alabamian's surprising one-out-of-four vote showing in the Wisconsin primary have been scoffed at as meaningless. But privately, both Republicans and Democrats are flabbergasted.

Two Senators already have asked their party machines to repoll their states and find out what the voters really think about the civil rights bill. Members of Congress from northern states with tiny non-white populations, who once thought civil rights was no issue in their domains, now are having second thoughts.

Wisconsin didn't get much attention until after the votes were counted. Indiana, where another primary also starring Gov. Wallace is due May 5, will transfix the eyes of all politics.

If the southern segregationist does better than he did in Wisconsin, the panic will be on and the whole future of the civil rights legislation could change.

Will Wallace top his surprising Wisconsin showing? Well, draw a line east and west through Indiana, and you have a little Mason-Dixon line. North, the state's attitudes and atmosphere are much like those in other midwestern industrial states. South, though, they call Little Dixie.

And another thing. Vehement segregationist though he is, Wallace doesn't talk about that in the north much. He talks about state's rights. And Indiana is the place where the legislature has memorialized Congress to stop federal hand-

CALIFORNIA SPEAKS

MRS. INDIA EDWARDS, new aid to Labor Secretary, visiting S. F. Bay area — "I don't expect women to take over government, but the proper way to run a family or a government is to have a partnership of men and women."

MRS. ESTHER RANDALL, Garden Grove, hostess for Long Beach beauty pageant — "The American girls are the most difficult to control, because they aren't used to chaperones."

ELOISE MOTZ, Fair Oaks, supporting Senator Engle — "Much of the world's progress has issued from the handicapped, those physically imperfect."

DR. M. ROBERT COLES, noted psychiatrist, in S.F. lecture — "People will ultimately come to terms with the racial situation not through the advice of their politicians or psychiatrists, but by falling back on their instincts and intuitions of what is right — not between races, but between people."

MRS. L. J. HENRY, Sacramento, on solving the problem of divorce — "How about teaching us how to become mature adults before we are married?"

BRUCE THOMPSON, Citrus Heights, on criticism of teenage drivers — "The public should be more thoughtful toward good drivers of all ages and not tear down the teenage driver, just because he is a teenager."

C. GREENLEAF, Berkeley — "Nothing but the election of those who fearlessly renounce appeasement can save the America whose freedoms have been the hope of the world."

outs. Indiana has actually turned down federal handouts, with scorn. Indianapolis' showplace urban renewal program was conceived and built without a penny of federal money.

So Wallace could get votes in Indiana on that plea, too.

Conversely, now that he is taken seriously, the state and national party machinery may move against him more effectively than they did in Wisconsin.

And after Indiana, Maryland has a primary later in May. Maryland is a border state, where racial demonstrations have caused trouble for many, many months. Suppose the Wallace vote is large there?

A civil rights bill is generally believed to be certain of passage. But if Wallace is gathering votes around the land with nothing, really, to offer except a chance for voters to protest a sweeping civil rights bill, the bill may not emerge quite so sweeping.

Amendments, such as those offered by Sen. Everett Dirksen (R-Ill.), may gather support from some unexpected quarters. Dirksen wants a civil rights bill. But he wants to eliminate the bill's "guilty until proven innocent" approach in the Fair Employment and other sections.

Will the Administration fight some softening of the bill? A softer civil rights bill would help President Johnson's reelection bid in the south, and now it appears it might even help him in the north. A studied silence during Senate tinker with the bill would be an easy course. A pat speech just for the record would be permissible, if Congress clearly understood it was for the record only.

Out of all this may come a moderated civil rights bill.

CHAPEL CHIMES

By Rev. N. J.
Thompson

A Midwest newspaper recently carried a story about 81-year-old Mrs. Ella Craig. This faithful Christian had not missed church attendance in 1,040 Sundays — a perfect record for 20 years.

What is the matter with Mrs. Craig? Doesn't she ever feel like sleeping late on Sunday morning, at her age? Doesn't she ever go to bridge parties or family gatherings on Saturday nights, so that she is just too tired to get up on Sunday mornings? Doesn't she ever suffer from headaches, nervous spells, colds, tired feelings? Doesn't she ever burn the biscuits, or forget to set the alarm clock, Doesn't she have any sudden calls out of the city, or business trips to take on Sunday, or picnics?

It's certainly queer that she never accepts any invitations for weekend trips! It's amazing how she can find time to read her Sunday newspaper! It's peculiar that she doesn't stay home and listen to some good preaching on her radio or TV!

Yes, Mrs. Craig is certainly a peculiar person. But then all Christians are supposed to be "peculiar", that is, above the ordinary, special.

St. Paul, in writing to his fellow-evangelist Titus, reminded him that Jesus Christ died "that He might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto Himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works", Titus 2:14. This is why Mrs. Craig is peculiar — she believes Christ died to redeem and purify her, and she expresses her gratitude in faithful devotion to God's house.

Mrs. Craig, and all who serve God, are peculiarly His own treasures, His jewels. To worldly eyes they may seem like oddballs, but God says, "They shall be mine, in that day when I make up my jewels." Malachi 3:17.

You will soon be trapped in the May mad merry go 'round with all unfinished activities being crowded into the last month before vacation. If you can't afford to leave town, or can't find a place to hide, you are stuck. No matter which course you take, it would be well to get your garden in shape during these beautiful spring mornings.

If you think your better half would be more help than hindrance it might be possible to get him up too. This can easily be done by setting the clock ahead or by setting fire to the house. Whichever you think best.

During the early morning light you may find a few roses need replacing or decide the hibiscus have permanently departed. We have these in ample supply. The roses are especially nice being full of bloom and covering a wide range of colors.

This is also the best time of year for inexpensive bedding plants. They are available in more kinds and varieties than ever before. From ageratum to zinnias, for sun or shade, for neglect or for babying, there is one just for you. Come by soon.

What's doing?

Maybe you read recently about that Coast Guard helicopter rescuing eleven people from the floundering Hattie D off Cape Mendocino. Well, if it hadn't been for a ship-to-shore telephone operator, the lucky eleven and the Coast Guard might not have gotten together. Seems that the stricken ship didn't use the regular emergency channel, and Operator Mrs. Evelyn Lubahn of Oakland picked up its "May Day" distress call over the Eureka Coastal Harbor radio-telephone channel. She promptly alerted the Coast Guard, who made the dramatic scoop from the sea. Just another case of a telephone operator giving help when it's needed.

Like good music with your TV? Then look in on the award-winning Bell Telephone Hour every other Tuesday at 10:00 p.m. on the NBC network.

"Money at work means men at work" is the slogan of Invest-in-America Week, April 26 to May 2. Investing in America may seem like a big order. But actually it's a matter of looking at it the way the Invest-in-America Council does. They say: "Our American system of free enterprise encourages saving and investment that helps to create new plants and jobs. As a result the average American has been able to produce more and live better."

In the long run, an extension phone in your kitchen, bedroom or work area — means shorter walks.

Next time you glance at your Porterville telephone book, try to visualize it multiplied 100-million times. Then translate what you see into 145,000 tons of paper. Now you have a picture of what goes into the Bell System's directory production job each year.

But the most important thing that goes into a telephone book is — accuracy. That's why we check every name, address and telephone number many times over before they ever appear in print.

THAR'S GOLD IN THEM THAR HILLS; HARP MAKES A FORTUNE—ALMOST

"There's gold in them thar hills," the father-in-law told us. We mentioned how we would just as soon be gold rich as oil rich and the father-in-law said he wouldn't promise anything, but we could give it a try on Saturday. So we began our gold prospecting career.

According to the movie script on gold mining we figured we would spend about 10 minutes panning for gold in a small mountain stream; then stumble upon at least a carload of fist-size nuggets. We would then do a little jumping around and shouting in the stream. Maybe fall down once or twice and then run into town, stop at the nearest saloon, plank down a nugget and buy everyone a Dr. Pepper while we celebrated our new found wealth.

Before we left on our prospecting trip we wrote out a rough draft of our teaching resignation and tried to contact a real estate agent to begin negotiations for the purchase of downtown Porterville. We figured we would be spending most of our time the next few days at the assayer's office (wherever that is).

When the father-in-law began getting out his prospecting equipment Saturday morning we began to have a few misgivings. He pulled out two shovels, a pick, two big sacks, and a back-pack. We commented on how we thought you were supposed to use a pan. He only laughed (kind of a sinister laugh, at that). Then he took off walking away from the stream, up toward the top of the small hills. We pointed out that the stream was back the other way, and any good John Wayne fan knew that you had to have a stream to have gold. He only said something about how we had only been a prospector for five minutes and were already trying to tell him how to do it. We told him maybe we better stay in camp and look out for claim jumpers. He

SCHOOLS ARE in the spotlight this week with general observance of Public Schools week, April 20-24, designed to encourage everyone to visit schools and inform themselves on school programs. Teachers throughout the Porterville Elementary district have set up an "Idea Fair" at Bartlett, illustrating methods used in teaching; in many elementary rooms throughout the district special displays are being told us to come on, and not to develop any phony limps.

We started climbing the hill and we could see that those Dr. Peppers were going to be a little longer coming than we thought. We kept stumbling along behind the father-in-law. We thought we might kick up a nice size nugget just to start the morning off right. About half way up the mountain we did manage to kick up a middle size rattlesnake. The father-in-law killed the snake with an alarmingly short handled shovel while we supervised the operation from 50 yards away.

We finally came to what the father-in-law thought was likely-looking gold country. It just looked like an out-cropping of shale and small gravel to us and we told him so. He only said that this was the kind of strata that you find gold in and that all we had to do was sack it up and carry it back to the stream where we could pan it.

Now, we have seen as many John Wayne prospecting movies as anyone and we have never, never seen gold mined that way.

About the time that we got the second sack filled and placed in the pack we felt a twing of our old back injury coming on. The father-in-law said it was all right, but folks that didn't help carry the dirt down the mountain didn't get to share in the proceeds. The back began to get better shortly

MUSEUM ITEMS OF LOCAL INTEREST WILL BE ACCEPTED BY COMMITTEE FOR SAFE-KEEPING AND DISPLAY

PORTERVILLE, Apr. 23 — Material that is accepted for the new Porterville museum must have historical significance in relation to the Porterville area, including the small surrounding communities and the mountain area, it was decided by members of the museum exhibits committee at a recent meeting.

Decision on specific items will be made by members of the exhibits committee, composed of: Mrs. Dorothy Margo, chairman; Mrs. Eleanor Jones, Miss Frances Marie Brey, Howard Frame, Bill Horst and Gene Duncan.

At the present time items of a documentary nature, such as letters, dairies, pictures, and old newspapers, are being accepted for the museum at the Porterville city library. Provision has not been made to receive larger items, since the museum building is not yet completed.

Work is underway, however, on the old Southern Pacific passenger depot that has been donated to the city of Porterville by Southern Pacific. A fence has been placed around the grounds and some work done toward renovation of the building.

Financing, and actual work on the building, is being handled by the Noon Lions club, of Porterville. The total museum project is under direction of the Porterville chamber of commerce.

Interested individuals and organizations are invited to participate in the Porterville museum project through donation of money. Allan Coates, manager of the chamber, can be contacted relative to donations.

"MISS DEMOCRAT" CONTEST IS UNDERWAY

TULARE, Apr. 23 — Candidates for Tulare County Miss Democrat for 1964, are out working.

Ken Clifford, of Tulare, representative for the 35th Assembly District Democratic council, says contestants must be currently attending regular classes in any Tulare County high school or junior college. In addition, they must plan to continue their education at the high school, junior college or university level.

To the winner goes one half the proceeds collected by all the candidates. Last year's Miss Democrat, Evelyn Cotta of Visalia, received a $379 scholarship. The top three runners-up each receive a $25 U.S. Savings Bond.

Clifford says this year's competition, based on a ticket sale of $1 per vote, is being conducted during the final six weeks of the school year, between April 15 and May 27.

Law Explained On Use Of Campaign Material On Cars

VISALIA, Apr. 23 — With the political fever rising for California's primary election in June, the California Highway Patrol has a word of caution for enthusiastic motorists in their display of campaign signs and windshield stickers.

According to Captain B. R. Smith, commander of the Patrol's Visalia area, all signs and stickers should be confined to the right hand side of the windshield within a seven-inch square area at the lower right hand corner.

"To place signs anywhere else on the windshield is not only illegal, but also hazardous to the driver since they will obstruct his view of on-coming traffic," he said.

Stickers may also be attached to the rear side windows if they are placed so that they will not obstruct the driver's clear view of approaching traffic, according to Captain Smith.

"However, signs and stickers on rear windows are expressly prohibited by the Vehicle Code," he said.
